Inspiration and Motivation in Photography - A Tuition Presentation

by Ann Miles (FRPS EFIAP MPAGB FBPE)

Ann Miles trained as a biologist and spent her working life in scientific publishing; this enabled her to keep abreast with all the changes from traditional to digital photography and printing. She has been interested in photography for many years, but only took it up as a serious hobby in the 1990s.

She has experimented with all types of photography, including black and white printing, nature photography and creative collages. All the available digital techniques, camera, manipulation and printing, are now used to produce images that depict the interactions of people, architecture, nature and landscape.
